Key Points

State law requires the Comptroller of the Treasury to update the judicial weighted caseload study annually to compare the state's judicial resources with an estimate of the judicial resources needed. This update provides estimates based on cases filed in FY 2016.

The state has an estimated net deficit of 4.22 judges for FY 2016. The weighted caseload update for FY 2015 showed an estimated net excess of 0.78 full-time equivalent (FTE) judges and an estimated net deficit of 2.73 judges for FY 2014. Overall, FY 2016 filings increased from FY 2015 by 2,449 cases (1.2 percent).

Yearly Trend in Number of Judicial Resources (Full-Time Equivalent Judges)

	2007 Mod	del		2013 Model

Estimated Judicial Resources Needed	150.94	148.55	145.35	157.13	154.73	151.22	157.22
Net excess of deficit in Judicial Resources	1.06	3.45	6.65	-5.13	-2.73	0.78	-4.22

Note: (a) Workers' compensation cases were excluded from the estimated judge need beginning in FY2013. Source: Calculations by Office of Research and Education Accountability based on data provided by the Administrative Office of the Courts (AOC).

The 2016 update also includes yearly trend data for each of the state's judicial districts. (See Exhibit 4 and Appendix C.)

The estimated number of FTE judges that courts need is calculated by multiplying the total number of case filings by case weights (average minutes per case for each type of case) and dividing that number by the judges' annual availability for case-specific work. The quantitative weighted caseload model can approximate judicial workload and the need for judicial resources, but it has limitations. Other factors, such as availability of judicial support staff and local legal practices, also affect judicial resources.

Introduction and Background

The 1997 appropriations bill passed by the General Assembly required the Comptroller's Office to conduct a judicial weighted caseload study to provide policymakers an objective means to determine the need for judicial resources.1 The Comptroller's Office contracted with the National Center for State Courts (NCSC) in 1998 to conduct a time-series study to determine the case weights that are used to calculate workload and full-time equivalent judges (FTE judges) needed by each judicial district. To account for changing laws and practices, the Comptroller's Office contracted with the National Center for State Courts in 2007 and 2013 to develop a revised weighted caseload model for Tennessee's general jurisdiction trial judges based on a new time study and case filings.^{2,3} Regular updates are designed to produce a more current and accurate gauge of the need for judicial resources throughout the state.4

Tennessee Code Annotated (TCA) 16-2-513 requires the Comptroller of the Treasury to update the judicial weighted caseload study annually to assess the workload and need for judicial resources, or FTE judges. This update provides estimates of judicial demand based on cases filed in fiscal year (FY) 2016 using the revised 2013 model.

The estimated number of FTE judges that courts need is calculated by multiplying the total number of case filings by case weights (average minutes per case for each type of case) and dividing that number by the judges' annual availability for case-specific work.⁵

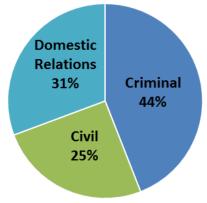

The quantitative weighted caseload model can approximate judicial workload and the need for judicial resources, but it has limitations. Other factors, such as availability of judicial support staff and local legal Exhibit 1: Filings by Case Type, FY 2016 practices, also affect judicial resources.

Analysis and Conclusions

Case Filings

In FY 2016, 204,507 cases were filed in Tennessee's state courts. Criminal cases accounted for 44 percent of cases, followed by domestic relations cases at 31 percent and civil cases at 25 percent. (See Exhibit 1.)

Overall, filings increased from FY 2015 by 2,449 cases (1.2) percent). Criminal cases increased about 5 percent, civil cases decreased by about 3 percent, and domestic relations cases stayed roughly the same. The largest changes (a total change of over 1,000 cases from FY 2015) included decreases in the number of workers' compensation (3,462)

Note: Workers' compensation cases will not be filed in state trial courts for injuries incurred on or after July 1, 2014. Workers' compensation cases are included in the number of cases filed, but these cases were excluded from the estimated judge need beginning in FY 2013. ⁽b) A separate weight for Administrative Appeals was developed for District 20 (Davidson County) in the 2013 time study to reflect additional time required for complex appeals from administrative hearings handled in District 20. Administrative Appeals in other counties are based on the total time reported for those cases in the 2013 time study.

⁽c) Workers' compensation cases will not be filed in state trial courts for injuries incurred on or after July 1, 2014. Workers' compensation cases are included in the number of cases filed, but these cases were excluded from the estimated judge need beginning in FY 2013.

and increases in C, D, and E felony cases (1,446) filed from FY 2015. The number of A and B felony cases, probation violation cases and misdemeanor cases increased (over 500 cases each from FY 2015) while the number of other petitions, motions, and writs, and the number of probate/trust cases also increased (over 400 cases each from FY 2015). Meanwhile, the number of child support and contempt cases decreased by over 300 cases each from FY 2015.

Full Time Equivalent Judges

Based on FY 2016 case filing data and workload, the state has an estimated net deficit of 4.22 FTE judges. (See Exhibit 3.) The weighted caseload update for FY 2015 showed an estimated net excess of 0.78 FTE judges and net deficit of 2.73 FTE judges in FY 2014.

Exhibit 4 shows the estimated deficit or excess of FTE judges by district over time.^{6, 7} According to the weighted caseload model, four districts show an estimated need of one⁸ or more FTE judge(s) in FY 2016:

- District 13 (Clay, Cumberland, DeKalb, Overton, Pickett, Putnam, and White counties) shows a net deficit of 1.63 judges in FY 2016. Prior to FY 2016, District 13 showed a net deficit of 0.55 in FY 2015 and a net deficit of 0.58 in FY 2014. District 13 saw a 1.08 change in judicial demand from FY 2015 to FY 2016. The district saw an increase of over 700 total cases filed from FY 2015, including 90 additional felony A and B cases, 185 felony C, D, and E cases, as well as 101 more DUI cases from FY 2015.
- District 16 (Cannon and Rutherford counties) shows a need for 1.42 judges in FY 2016, an increase of 0.25 FTE judges from FY 2015. District 16 showed an increase of only 55 total filings from FY 2015, but saw an increase in felony C, D, and E cases of 157 from FY 2015. Historically, District 16 has shown a judicial need of over one FTE judge since the model was adjusted in FY 2013.

Note: (a) Workers' compensation cases will not be filed in state trial courts for injuries incurred on or after July 1, 2014. Workers' compensation cases are included in the number of cases filed, but these cases were excluded from the estimated judge need beginning in FY 2013. The state net FTE judges associated with workers' compensation cases was estimated as 3.95 in FY 13, 4.08 in FY 14, and 3.41 in FY 15. (See Appendix C.)

⁽b) See Appendix A for changes in design and assumptions from 2007 to 2013 Tennessee Trial Courts Judicial Weighted Caseload Models.

- District 19 (Montgomery and Robertson counties) shows a need for 1.89 judges in FY 2016. In FY 2015, the district showed a need for 2.77 FTE judges and 2.89 judges in FY 2014. Prior to the FY 2013 revised model, District 19 showed a need for more than one judge for seven years. However, in FY 2015 the General Assembly created a new circuit court judgeship for Judicial District 19.9 The judge was sworn in October 30, 2015.10
- District 23 (Cheatham, Dickson, Houston, Humphreys, and Stewart counties) shows a net deficit of 1.18 FTE judges in FY 2016. The district showed a net deficit of 0.64 FTE judges in FY 2015, a net deficit of 0.71 FTE judges in FY 2014, and a net deficit of 1.01 FTE judges in FY 2013. District 23 has seen an increase of 547 total cases filed from FY 2015, including an increase in felony A and B cases by 131 and felony C, D, and E cases by 102 cases from FY 2015.

According to the weighted caseload model, one district shows an estimated excess of one or more FTE judges in FY 2016:

District 20 (Davidson County) shows an excess of 1.11 judges in FY 2016 while total case filings decreased from FY 2015 by 2,697. Davidson County has historically shown an excess of 1.07 judges in FY 2015 and an excess of 0.79 judges in FY 2014. Davidson County's judicial need estimate does not include the 0.64 FTE judicial workload associated with workers' compensation cases in FY 2016 since workers' compensation cases were excluded from the estimated judge need beginning in FY 2013. (See Appendix C.)

Another notable change in judge need in FY 2016 was:

District 30 (Shelby County) showed a net deficit of 0.21 FTE judges in FY 2016, a shift of 1.58 FTE judges from FY 2015, which showed a net excess of 1.37 FTE judges. Shelby County also showed a net excess of judges in FY 2014 (1.25) and FY 2013 (2.76). Overall, filings in Shelby County increased by 1,239 from FY 2015. Shelby County saw increases in first degree murder by 19 total cases, felony A and B cases by 123 total cases and medical malpractice by 18 cases, all carrying high case weights.

Appendix A: Changes in Design and Assumptions from 2007 to 2013 Tennessee Trial Courts Judicial Weighted Caseload Models

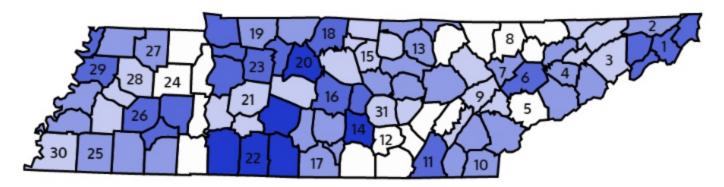

In 2013, the National Center for State Courts worked with selected Tennessee trial court judges and staff with the Administrative Office of the Courts and the Comptroller's Office to develop a revised model to estimate the total judicial officer demand based on cases filed. Tennessee judges reported their time for six weeks out of an 11-week period in the summer of 2013, which was used to determine the average time spent on case-related and non-case-related activities statewide. Based on the 2013 time study, new case weights were assigned to each case type in order to more accurately estimate judicial need throughout the state.^A

Changes made to the model in 2013 include:

- The case type First Degree Murder was separated from the Major Felony case type to account for the greater average judge time required for First Degree Murder cases.
- Separate case types and average times required were added for post-conviction relief, residential parenting, and domestic relations contempt cases to better reflect the judge time required for these cases.
- A separate case weight was added for Other Petitions, Motions, and Writs cases for districts with a state prison to reflect the additional time required for post-conviction relief cases including habeas corpus petitions from state prisoners.
- A separate weight for Administrative Appeals was developed for District 20 (Davidson County) to reflect the additional time required for complex appeals from administrative hearings handled in District 20. Administrative Appeals in other counties are based on the total time reported for those cases.
- Judge availability is based on an eight-hour day; earlier models were based on a 7.5 hour day.
- Due to changes in state law, workers' compensation cases will no longer be filed in state courts for injuries incurred on or after July 1, 2014. Workers' compensation cases are included in the number of cases filed, but these cases were excluded from the estimated judge need beginning in FY 2013.

A complete report describing the process and the 2013 revised model is available at http://www.comptroller.tn.gov/Repository/RE/NCSC%20Judicial%202013.pdf.

- ⁸ In previous years, OREA used 0.8 FTE judges as the threshold for change when providing an explanation for the shift in judicial demand. For FY 2016, OREA simplified the threshold to one FTE judge. The higher threshold excluded District 4 (-.83) from the net deficit list and Districts 9 (.80) and District 24 (.87) from the excess list. None of these districts have had an excess or deficit of over one judge in the last three years.
